

Key Notes by Key

You walk into the good old 'Daily' Office one day, thinking how great it is to be back at work, and suddenly you see the feature editor smiling at you with a significant gleam in the old eye. "Ah," (and right then and there you know what's coming), "I suppose we'll be having an exchange column from you quite regularly this year."

You smile weakly, and agree amiably. After all, it's not such a bad prospect,--sometimes in the not too near future.

Then comes Sunday night and you are sitting at a typewriter, leisurely banging out a movie review. (One of the redeeming "features" of a feature editor is that occasionally, by dint of hard work, you can manage to snaffle a pass). From nowhere the significant smile appears again, and you are asked to produce the column which has been germinating comfortably in your mind, and is still in the early embryonic stages,--"FOR TOMORROW!"

You immediately forget your sketchy plan and start off again on an entirely new track. And then you begin, like this:

Glancing through first issues from our fellow-students from other campuses (or camp), it would seem that freshmen are at their greenest at Purdue University where a couple of innocents were blissfully labouring under the delusion that gambling debts incurred at the billiard room were covered by their student society fees!

Freshies of McGill Take a look at what is being done to Freshmen at Queen's. Excerpts from "Queen's Freshmen Regulations":

"1. Hair must be kept less than half an inch long and closely clipped or shaven two inches above the ears.

"2. Frosh must be clean-shaven... (a fond farewell to that bit of High School fluff they've been cherishing all summer).

3. No fusing.

4. Frosh must use the side door of the Union at all times.

5. Frosh are not allowed out after ten on week nights.

6. All Freshmen caught in a beverage room must buy each upper classman a present, 1 pint every fifteen minutes (until...).

7. Matches and bottle openers to be carried for upper classmen at all times."

There is a whole list, these being only the rules which are enforced for two weeks, among those which will last all year is "Upper classmen must be respected at all times," which seems to speak a good deal louder for the spirit of the Freshies than for respectability of the sophs, et al.

All the other campus newspapers have some variety of gossip column. Oh, well, maybe they can afford to. What I mean is, maybe they haven't all got an Air Force Unit stationed on the campus...

Likewise from the Queen's Journal comes this little item: "She: Shall I return the engagement ring? He: Don't bother; I'll just send the notice of the next instalment to you." (H'm, sounds like a guy I knew... once).

Purdue convocation this fall will be remembered (by those who are not graduating) for the appearance of Bidu Sayao, Metropolitan Opera singer from Brazil, who will present a program of light opera pieces and concert numbers. It seems to me that Bidu Sayao is a pretty nice graduation gift for anybody...

"Sall for now. Hope I'll be seeing you soon again."

Nominations Deadline For Student's Council Set For Next Wednesday

Election by Secret Ballot Will Take Place October 19

Due to the fact that students who have held key positions on the Campus have joined the nation's Armed Services, the Students' Executive Council is now without members from the Faculty of Arts and Science, the School of Commerce, and the Royal Victoria College. Nominations are therefore being sought for representatives from these Faculties.

All nominees who will hold these positions for this session 1942-43 must of necessity be students in their senior year at the University. Following the procedure as in former years, the nominations for the representatives to the Students' Council will be carried out in the usual manner. These nominations must be put in writing, signed by at least ten undergraduate students from the faculty which the member is to represent.

Nomination Deadline

These written nominations must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Students' Society, Mr. G. H. Fletcher, whose office is situated in the McGill Union, Wednesday, October 7th, 1942, is the deadline for these nominations, and they must be handed in before 2:30 p.m.

On October 18th, the elections at which the representatives will be selected will take place. Election will be by secret ballot by the Undergraduates of the Faculties concerned.

The location of election polls has not as yet been announced but there will be an announcement in the Daily to keep the students posted. Clifton Beck, who joined the Royal Canadian Air Force this past summer, left vacant the Arts and Science post. Under the terms of the University Air Training Plan, Beck was the first member to enlist in the R.C.A.F. from McGill.

Donald Delvin, who was the representative from the School of Commerce, is graduating at the Convocation tomorrow, after having completed the summer course. Jean Curry, who was the R.V.C. representative is graduating at the same time with her degrees in Arts.

Oct. 15th Last Chance For Changing Courses

Students wishing to make changes in their courses should do so before the 15th of October. The office of the Dean of Arts and Science announces that students in Arts and Commerce should make known their changes and have them approved by the Dean or his Assistant in the Arts Building. Science students should have their changes approved by Prof. W. H. Barnes in the Chemistry Building. When approved, these changes must be handed into the Dean's Office.

The Dean's Office emphasizes that it is not enough merely to go into another class and report to the instructor. Complications may arise for students failing to comply with these regulations when the Exams come around.

And as the cook replied, "Shure and I'm not. I'm the man that cooks the mate."

Date for Convention Set At Newman Club Meeting

A tentative date of November 6 was set for the Newman Club convention at the first meeting of the season held yesterday at the Union. Universities to be represented are Toronto, Western, Queens and McMaster's.

A report of the Club dance held on Saturday night at the Union Grill-room was read by Pierre Senecal. It was estimated that 120 people were present.

Rev. Father Carter, chaplain of the club, welcomed the new members and introduced this year's executive. The next meeting was scheduled for Oct. 18. As in former years, meetings will be held on the first and third Sunday of every month.

Coeds Hear Dr. Roscoe

War Service Program Chief Topic of Talk

McGill women undergraduates were addressed by Dr. Muriel V. Roscoe at the official opening of Royal Victoria College on Friday afternoon.

Dr. Roscoe outlined the history of R.V.C., and pointed out that there were about twelve times as many women registered at the college this year as there were when it opened in 1899. It is a separate college within McGill and has its own board of directors. Dr. Roscoe explained. These directors, however, are also directors of McGill, but meet as a separate board to discuss R.V.C. matters.

Dr. Roscoe emphasized the very important part Lord Strathcona played in the establishing of R.V.C., which is the headquarters for all women undergraduates as well as being the residence for women students, and she expressed the hope that the girls would look upon it as a second home.

Dr. Roscoe also talked of the War Service Program for women. All women students are required to register for this program. While the first year co-eds have to take the course especially planned for them, second, third and fourth year students may choose any course from those listed, among which are the following: Red Cross, A.R.P. work, first aid or shorthand and typing.

Dr. Roscoe said that she would be looking forward to a very interesting and successful year.

Commerce Fete Frosh Tonight

Union to be Scene of New Commerce Event

A gathering of the Commercial Undergraduate Society is being held in the McGill Union Grill Room tonight at 8.15. Invited to attend are the Commerce Freshmen and Freshettes, the latter being especially urged to attend since the entertainment planned is as much for their benefit as it is for that of the Freshmen.

Don Delvin, elected President of the Society last year, will be chairman at the gathering, which will be held in the form of an Open House Meeting.

Carnegie Music Room Opens To All Students

"Carnegie Music Room is now open to all students," the Faculty of Music announces.

Due to the lack of people to supervise, there may be some periods during which the room will be closed. Students from any department interested in operating the gramophone are urged to volunteer for one or two periods regularly each week.

The music room is located on the ground floor of the Conservatorium and is supplied with a wide selection in classical records.

Convocation Ball to Honour New Graduates

First Formal Event To Be Held at Union

McGill's first class graduating from the Summer Schools held this year under new wartime regulations, are to be honoured tomorrow night by a Convocation Ball. The first of its kind in College history, the event will celebrate the graduation of all students who have successfully completed their courses at McGill since last May. This does not however mean that the dance is solely for graduates, and all undergrads and even frosh will be welcomed.

This, the first formal of the season on the McGill campus is to take place in the Union, commencing at 10 p.m. Blake Sewell, who is well known to local terpsichoreans, will be on the dais with his orchestra, and dancing will continue well into the small hours. Following the precedent set by last year's formal committees, corsages have been banned for the event, except as concerns those already procured by graduates. Supper will be provided.

Patrons at the affair will be the Principal and Mrs. F. Cyril James, Dean and Mrs. Cyrus Macmillan, Dr. Roscoe and Professor Newton. Tickets for the price of $4.00 are still available, and may be obtained at Bill Gentleman's office, the Union or from any of the following members of the executive: Jean Curry, George Wong, Blake Robinson, Barbara Mercer, Guy Hebert or Joan Storey. Decoration themes are as yet unannounced, stated a member of the committee, but will conform to the general plan.

The event is to take place on the same day as Convocation, and will put a fitting conclusion to the ceremony at which the guests of honour are to receive their degrees. Thus the War has established the precedent of holding two Convocation Balls in one year, and this seems likely to be continued as long as the University carries on its newly-conceived program of summer courses. Students taking these courses will in this way be provided with an opportunity of saying farewell to the Alma Mater of which they might otherwise have been deprived by the war.

Rev. Cameron Addresses S.C.M.

Says Religion Not Confined To Churchdays Only

"Dynamic religion should play an active part in the everyday life of a college student, and it should be on a seven day basis," stated the Rev. Angus Cameron while addressing the students at the Sunday evening Chapel Service of the S.C.M.

The special music was under the direction of Mr. George Brewer, and at the close of the regular service he presented a short recital of organ music.

The Rev. Cameron, regular pastor of the Church of the Messiah, quoted as his text several passages from the scripture which outlined the concept of religion as everyday activity. Continuing this theme he noted that many people considered the performance of religious rites as sufficient for their spiritual life, but such was not the case with Christ whom he said "went about doing good." This course he recommended to the students.

The President of the S.C.M. Joan Edwards announced the activities of the S.C.M. among which are the regular fortnightly Sunday Services, and the Open House which will follow these services.

Summer Session—Grads' Pictures to Be Taken

Graduating students of the Summer Session should have their photographs taken and biographies handed in for Volume 46 of the McGill Annual, if they have not already done so, the Annual Board has announced.

Pictures are to be taken at Jacoby Studios, 1541 Crescent St. this week. A list of those who have yet to have their photographs taken appears on page 4 of this issue. Biography forms may be obtained at the McGill Union Tuck Shop and should be returned there when filled out.

Silence Reigns As Female Joins The Plumbers

By F.C.

Something New Has Been Added Very Very Tasty

This year, 1942, will go down in the history of McGill as one of its unique years, or, correcting the grammar, as its absolutely unique year. For two stupendous things have happened. We have yet to decide which is the more stupendous. First, the Faculty of Engineering have opened up "the last stronghold of manhood" to the female of the species and have admitted a girl into Engineering.

The second is this. The Engineers when told about it were stunned into silence. After a ten minute period during which, again for the first time in history, supporting arms were given them along with soothing words of appeasement, they were able to murmur such diverse things as quote: "My opinion ain't fit to be printed." "Well, she probably won't get past her first year." "Boy, wait till I see her heave coal around!" "A female engineer, there ain't no such animal!"

"What is she going to do with engineering?" "Hey, they can't do that to us!" "It's a miracle!" "With the girls in architecture, there are already too many women around!" "What are they going to call her... a plumbess?" Apropos of this last, since the lady concerned is going to enter aeronautical engineering in her third year, it was suggested by one of the weaker minds that they call her an "Ailress."

We next interviewed two of the professors and the girl herself. Professor French refused to state his opinion pro or con, but he did say (Continued on Page Four)

I.V.C.F. Greet Frosh at Tea

Members Hear Address by Melvin Donald

Yesterday afternoon, in the McGill Union, The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship held a reception for the Freshmen. The idea of the reception was to acquaint the newcomers with the purpose of the Fellowship, and to hear an address by Mr. Melvin V. Donald, Assistant General Secretary of the I.V.C.F. of Canada.

After a hymn-song, Stewart Rutledge, the President of the McGill I.V.C.F., gave a short speech. He welcomed any new member who wished to join, and invited the Freshmen and Freshettes to participate in their activities during the coming year. Rutledge then introduced Mr. Donald, who is making a trans-Canada tour of the I.V.C.F. in other colleges. He stressed the importance of the Fellowship and of its value in years to come.

ATTENTION RVC '43

ALL SENIOR women are asked to register today with the War Service Committee of the Women's Union, in the Arts Common Room from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. This is not necessary for students who registered last Friday, but it includes those who registered in Room 25 in the Arts building last week. This is very important.

Fall Convocation To Be Held Tomorrow in Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium

Dr. James to Deliver Graduation Address

The Fall Convocation this year will feature the presentation of Prizes in Medicine, in addition to the presentation of holders of scholarships at the University. The Convocation will be held in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow. Both the fall graduates and the summer-school graduates will be capped. Well over 100 degrees will be given.

Dr. James To Speak

The address will be delivered by the Principal, Dr. F. Cyril James. Sir Edward Beatty, the Chancellor of the University, will not be present. The Reverend Dr. G. G. D. Kilpatrick, Principal of the United Theological College, will deliver the Convocation Prayer. Music will be provided by the C.O.T.C. Band.

Attendance at the Convocation is compulsory for Freshmen. The University stresses the fact that the Convocation commemorates Founder's Day, providing McGill's student body with an opportunity to learn traditions and customs that attach to it.

It was announced that the Grenadier Guards will not guard the tomb of James McGill as they have done in past years, owing to wartime conditions. There will be no honorary degrees given this year.

The following scholarship holders will be presented to the Principal at the Convocation:

Around the Globe

Stalingrad:

Despite continued attacks on the besieged city of Stalingrad the gallant Russian defenders are holding out stubbornly. In the northeast of the city, the Russians are still maintaining the initiative where the Red Army advances in the last few days were said to be threatening the German left flank.

Appeal for Second Front:

Joseph Stalin, in a letter to the U.S. war correspondent Mr. Cassidy, described the importance of a second front and called upon the Allies to "fulfill their obligations fully and on time."

Australians Continue to Advance:

Still in pursuit of the Japs, the Australians have made a six-mile advance in the Owen Stanley Range, and have reached Efoe.

U.S. Advances in Aleutians:

U.S. troops, supported by naval units, have occupied positions in the Andreanof Islands. From these bases, American planes are already operating against the Japanese entrenched in Kiska, Agattu and Attu.

The War Council

The War Council will meet for the first time this year on Wednesday, October 14th, to formulate a program for the coming year. For the benefit of the newcomers a word may be said of the War Council itself. The Council was set up last year for the purpose of co-ordinating all campus activities relevant to the University war effort. As a result, such campaigns as the "Mile of pennies," "Salvage drives," etc. were successfully undertaken.

A feature of the Council last year however was that, being a newly formed institution it lacked in some respects the confidence of the campus as a whole. This attitude was understandable in view of the fact that the actual constitution and workings were not completely comprehended by everyone.

It is our opinion, however, that whatever criticisms may be made of the War Council, none can doubt that it is a step in the right direction. No one can argue that for an optimum war effort on the part of university students, all student organizations, whether they be on or off the campus, must co-operate to the fullest.

This co-operation can be achieved only by a complete understanding among such diversified groups as scientific clubs and humanities clubs, between religious clubs and social science clubs, etc. Therefore by conscientiously sending representatives to the War Council, university organizations can help to make McGill's war effort lead other universities by an even wider margin than it did in past years, and it has been rightly said that "if a house be divided amongst itself that house cannot stand."

Student Activities

In spite of the great demands of military training and the speed-up in regular academic courses to meet wartime needs, student activities retain much of their significance at McGill. The eighty-five clubs and societies on the campus represent what one professor has called "the spontaneous, enthusiastic pursuit of some chosen ideal." Few if any clubs have ceased to carry on their activities, although in many cases social functions have been greatly curtailed. This fact in itself demonstrates the important place which extracurricular activities continue to occupy in student life.

If these clubs can so direct their activities as to assist in the winning of the war, they will be that much more serviceable to the university and the nation. Many have contributed greatly in the past two years, and this only prompts us to ask for even greater contributions in the present session.

To the incoming Freshman class we say: take part in the activities of the group in which your interest lies. Much pleasure and benefit can be derived from these associations. But we suggest that you restrict your activities to a very few societies, for the mutual benefit of your work and the societies themselves. There is no place for dilution of energy over a great number of interests, which only produces uselessness in every one of them.

Clarifications

A number of misunderstandings have arisen concerning certain features of the new military regulations.

All students will first be enrolled in the B Wing of the C.O.T.C. and subsequently transferred to other sections.

The regulations for the University Air Training Corps state that students will be paid the equivalent of forty days' pay. This, as in the case of the C.O.T.C. pay, will be signed over to the U.A.T.C. fund. The regulations further state that cadets of the U.A.T.C. will be under the R.C.A.F. control and subject to Air Force Law while on parade. This is meant to imply while in Uniform.

"Tales of Manhattan," currently showing at the Palace, is an essay in motion-picture novelty featured by an appreciable portion of daring experiment and yet, anomalously, informed almost all through by an undertone of orthodoxy—which leaves it an outstanding picture that misses greatness by a hair, but a perceptible hair.

Basic architectural pattern of the picture is revolutionary. The film consists of a number of independent episodes receiving tenuous continuity from the fact that each episode is a chapter or phase in the career of one tailor at New York or more properly on Manhattan Island. If the usual movie can be called broadly a novel, then "Tales of Manhattan" is, analogously, a program of short stories.

Since to film a short story obviously taxes directorial and productional ingenuity the picture's pattern is its own acid test. One or two of the episodes have the characteristics of a good short story, displaying concentrated drama, suspense, and occasionally, humor. In one the suave hand of Ferenc Molnar was plainly evident.

The opening episode, featuring Charles Boyer and Rita Hayworth is of a high class and receives its distinction from Julien Duvivier's masterly direction. The chapter with Ginger Rogers, Henry Fonda, and Cesar Romero, is an ingratiating piece impressive by its delicate sauciness and telling subtlety and irony. Charles Laughton and Edward G. Robinson invest their respective episodes with magnificent performances, but their yeoman efforts, first rate per se, cannot enable the episodes to transcend the rather severe limitations imposed by scripts and stock characters that assemble virtually every cliché contained in films and lower-quality fiction about the vicissitudes of Manhattan.

Laughton's episode has moments of honest and genuine pathos and moments of deplorable hokum and thus can serve as exemplary of the whole picture, which is a clinically interesting anomaly. More homogeneously original, Robinson's chapter is pleasantly flavored by intelligently used music both incidental and essential. Though Paul Robeson is as always, commanding, his episode is unfortunate and provides him with justification for his rage at Hollywood for giving him material about Negro character that is naive, unsubtle, and flavored with unwarranted theatrical mysticism.

"Tales of Manhattan" is of course, as a glance at the cast shows, a sidereal revelation. But the galaxy is widely distributed to the separate episodes with due regard for professional jealousy. The result is that the revelation is never at any one time too luminous for the eye to take. It would be interesting to see all these stars in one continuous full-length film providing opportunity for them all to work together in the development of the plot.

For its attempt at something genuinely new and for a number of sparkling performances and many exciting moments, "Tales of Manhattan" should be seen by all. The crowds taxing the resources of the Palace Theatre all week-end bear this out amply.—E. G.

The triple star combination of Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire and Irving Berlin have combined their various talents to produce Holiday Inn, an extremely tuneful good-natured film, which is now settled at Loew's for the second week.

The idea of constructing a musical around an inn that is open for business only on holidays, is a natural for the principles involved. It allows free play for Crosby and Astaire to perform against the background of Berlin's fluffy spirited melodies. There is a bumper crop of Berlin confections, with appropriate musical interpretations of Lincoln's birthday, the Fourth of July, St. Valentine's Day, to mention a few. "White Christmas" and "Be Careful, It's My Heart" are two which are already echoing from a thousand juke boxes throughout the land.

There's no point in dissecting Holiday Inn into its component parts as a film. The plot is only a slim strand of continuity that links the music together. Crosby is appropriately and characteristically casual as the composer-singer with a yen to get out of show business and into something a little less demanding of time and energy. Fred Astaire maintains his agility as of old and both of them manage with ease. The ladies involved include Marjorie Reynolds and Virginia Dale. Of these Miss Reynolds is more frequently in evidence as she sings with Crosby, dances with Astaire and looks very decorative when not engaged in either of these strenuous occupations. Miss Dale does considerably less singing and dancing and is there merely to even up the boy and girl finale. Walter Abel stops playing Mr. District Attorney long enough to play Astaire's apocryphal agent, and Louise Beavers as Crosby's motherly housekeeper add to the goings-on.

Holiday Inn is one of those movies that has everything to make it successful and happy, it is.—M. S. W.

"ACROSS THE PACIFIC" AT THE CAPITOL

The movie, "Across the Pacific" seems to be the next in a series after "The Maltese Falcon," in that the case cast is making another bid at surprising the producers and smashing box office estimates again. Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Sydney Greenstreet and Director John Huston have come together and made this wartime thriller which is both interesting and entertaining.

The story is built around Richard Leland (Humphrey Bogart) who, at the beginning of the story, is dishonorably discharged from his captaincy in the United States army. He tries to enlist in Canada, but is rejected on account of his American record. Deciding to join the Chinese army, Leland boards a Jap cargo boat for Yokohama.

Aboard ship he meets and falls in love with Alberta Marlow (Mary Astor) and he meets Dr. Lorenz (Sidney Greenstreet). Lorenz, who admits his great admiration for the Japanese, slyly persuades Leland to talk of his American discharge, and to reveal plans of the Panama Canal area. Then Leland agrees to work for the Jap sympathizer.

In New York, Leland reports to his superior, where we find out that he is in the Army intelligence service, and that Lorenz is the man the intelligence is out to get.

The added attraction, "Blondie's Blessed Event," is much better than those "Blondie" pictures that have preceded it, and will provide some good laughs.—B. A.

Bill Roberts.....Dana Andrews
Carla.....Mona Maris
Captain Carl von Rau.....Martin Kosleck
Dr. Dietrich.....Sig Rumann

"Berlin Correspondent" is another spy picture with all the usual characters and situations expected of the modern espionage thriller. There is a beautiful heroine in distress, a fast-thinking, fast-acting American newspaperman, and a too, too nasty Nazi.

Bill Roberts (Dana Andrews), the American, is sending out information as to the true course the war is taking to his newspaper through his evening broadcast. The Gestapo knows why but is interested in finding out exactly how he is doing it. So they put the beautiful heroine on his trail. Unfortunately, the man behind Roberts' inside information is the girl's own father. When this is disclosed, the mad plotting to effect his escape begins, also the fun for the audience.

The acting is average, with some outstanding work done by Martin Kosleck as the German captain. Unfortunately, he is not allowed to sustain what should have been an extremely good characterization, owing to the slapstick comedy which the director has seen fit to intersperse with his more serious scenes.

The film is no better and no worse than the whole series of this type which has lately overrun the movie-houses. It would make a good second half of a double feature bill.

The added attraction is a dull little number called "The Postman Didn't Ring." It could have been a rather good film but the central theme is overplayed in a sorry fashion, and the situations are banal.—J. R. G.

Heavy Workouts To Commence During Coming Week

Friday afternoon saw about forty-five enthusiastic football players running through preliminary training at Molson Stadium. While under the expert guidance of Coach Doug Kerr, these stalwarts were driven through successive periods of calisthenics, passing, plunging, and signal drill in preparation for the forthcoming schedule.

According to Coach Kerr the league will be run on the same basis as last year, although the entry of the Macdonald Aggies will be sorely missed. All the gridiron hopefuls will be placed on one of three teams which will probably be designated by the names Army, Navy, and Air Force. Competition will be begun in about two weeks.

Meanwhile workouts are being held daily at the Stadium at 4:30. About eighty per cent of the players that have turned out thus far are either new to football at McGill or are freshmen. Generally speaking, the men appear to be lighter

REMARKS BY MARKS

Last winter the McGill Daily conducted a poll to determine whether students at McGill were in favor of a resumption of Inter-collegiate athletics, as a direct result, of this and similar polls at other universities, was a decision that the colleges may field teams to compete in city leagues. The only university to take advantage of this ruling up till the present time is Queen's.

This year in the Montreal district the Q.R.F.U. is running a four team league which is composed mainly of service teams and a team from one of the war plants. Through the greater part of the month of September this league was begging for teams to join, it would have been an easy matter to enter a team in this strictly amateur league.

Even if the football played by the McGill team would be a trifle below the standard expected of our teams, it would create a new interest in sport at McGill. The great fear of the Athletic office is probably the fact that many of the boys from the intermural teams of last fall are not back at college. However, a little courageous action on the part of the Athletic Department could have easily overcome this difficulty.

The third practice of the season for the intermural league is this afternoon at 5 p.m. and it is very possible that if Coach Kerr has a good turnout, we might possibly see the McGill colours marching victoriously down the field (we hope) in games against some of the teams from the Q.R.F.U.

The surprising St. Louis Cards came a step closer to the world baseball crown when they outslugged the Bronx Bombers in the fourth game of the 1942 World Series. Off to a bad start in the first game of the Autumn baseball classic, the Cards in the next two games unreeling a combination of beautiful defensive skill with effective pitching and great daring on the base paths to take the lead from the heavily favoured Yanks.

Sunday afternoon the Red Birds invaded the Yanks home grounds and outslugged them, a thing that many so-called sports' experts thought impossible. It probably brings back to many old baseball fans the great upsurge of the Boston Braves of 1914, who were in last place on July 4th and then went on to win the baseball crown. This afternoon will see the great Yankee team fighting for survival against one of the hottest organizations to appear on the baseball front in many a moon.

McGill Wins Rugger Match

Tyhurst, Bishop, Kayser Pace Red Attack

Saturday afternoon, at Westmount Park, the rugger season was opened with a double header, when McGill met the R.C.A.F. Lachine and the R.A.F. Ferry Command played the R.C.A.F. Wayfarers.

The first game between McGill and Lachine was won by the former by a 14-0 score. The opening was even, both teams studying each other, but when Lachine failed to show a definite superiority the Red team threw caution away and took the offensive, which they held till the final whistle, except for a few raids in the second period, which the back, Kayser from Westmount, stopped.

Montgomery was the first to score when he dived on the ball over the Lachine touchdown line after a scramble. Kayser failed to convert. The match was more or less at a standstill on the Lachine twenty-five yard line when a forward pass (not legal in rugger) gave the opportunity to Tyhurst, McGill captain, to kick the penalty over the goal post and increase the lead to 6-0. The first half ended with McGill still in the Lachine zone.

TYHURST, BISHOP SCORE

The second period began with McGill receiving the kick. The game this time was dangerously close to the McGill touchdown line, but Lar-

McGill Tennis Tourney Starts Matches To-day

Watt, Henneman, Richer, Duff Are Seeded

The annual tennis tournament, which will be held on the campus courts, will get under way this afternoon at 2 p.m. This year's entry list, which is slightly smaller than last year's, nevertheless shows that there is still plenty of interest in tennis competition, for 73 entries were received when Saturday's deadline was reached.

Bob Watt, last year's winner of the Dr. Martin Cup, emblematic of McGill's tennis championship, is expected to receive strong competition from such seeded stars as El Henneman and John Richer, who were runners-up in last year's tourney. However, a dark horse for top honours is Jim Duff, a freshman, who is well-known in local tennis circles. But each competitor, whether a winner or loser in the match play, will be a winner in the sense that he is getting added points for his company.

All those who cannot play at the time scheduled for their match must get in touch with Bob Watt at PL 6773 before the match or they will be defaulted. All participants are asked to bring their own tennis balls.

W.H.S. Trims Montreal; W.H.S. Falls to C.H.S.

Both West Hill High School and Catholic High continued their winning ways on Saturday afternoon at the Molson Stadium when the Blue and Gray defeated Montreal High by a score of 21 to 0, and the Black and White trounced the defending champs, Westmount, to the tune of 6 to 3.

The west end champions went down to their second straight defeat when they failed to halt a Catholic High touchdown drive in the first quarter. A Gelineau to Chevrier forward pass was good for 15 yards. Two sweeps by Mike Delaney and Gerry Coleman moved the ball to the seven from where Tommy Bridel stepped around right end for the major score. The attempt at convert failed, but the other C.H.S. point was scored when John Porter was roused in the second quarter. In the second half of the game, Westmount began to dominate the play, but could not move the ball over the Black and White goal line. The westenders' three points were scored as a result of a touch from fumble and the convert.

In the second game, West Hill romped home for four touchdowns, converting one, and handed Montreal High its first setback of the current football season. In the second quarter, Doug Harvey ploughed through the Blue and White line for the initial major score. Harvey's successful convert added another point to the W.H.S. total. The other majors, all a result of high class running, were scored by Don Loney, Jimmy Kidd, and Roy Brown in the second half.

ATTACK SUCCESSFULLY REPULSED!

FROM the decks of our aircraft carrier, avenging squadrons of fighters speed to ward off the enemy's attack. To achieve success, all units must have constant, unfailing contact with each other.

Above the ear-shattering roar of falling bombs—the pounding chatter of pom-poms—the surging drum of powerful motors—commands must be clearly given—directions clearly heard.

A ship, particularly hard pressed; needs aerial reinforcement—a fighting pilot needs warning of an enemy attack upon his rear—a squadron leader must relay to his flight the orders he has received from his ship. By means of radio these commands and warnings are given quickly, clearly, surely. Powerful radio receiving and transmitting sets provide the means of communication by which every fighting unit—every fighting man is kept constantly informed.

Designing, perfecting and manufacturing such radio communications equipment for our fighting planes is one of many typical wartime services now being performed in the ever-expanding manufacturing plant of RCA Victor at Montreal.

Through the Din of Battle, Radio Unerringly Delivers the Commands

For our fighting planes, RCA Victor has developed and perfected radio communication equipment especially designed to operate dependably under all conditions. An army of skilled RCA Victor workers, a technical corps of RCA Victor engineers wages a ceaseless battle on the home front to produce more and better wartime radio equipment.

time Kayser converted, to bring the score up to 11-0. A few minutes later, Covo picked the ball from the scrum, passed to Tyhurst, who passed to Bishop, who made a run for the third touchdown for McGill. Kayser again kicked the ball between the goal posts, but the referee annulled the conversion on a technicality. Final score 14-0 for McGill. The whole McGill team played well, considering that this is the first game, but outstanding were Tyhurst, Bishop and Kayser.

than in previous years, but the brand of football so far displayed has been quite good.

MORE PLAYERS NECESSARY

The enthusiasm of those who have already turned out has gratified the coaching staff, although the number of prospects has been quite small. Coach Kerr emphasized that more players will be necessary if the league is to carry on successfully. There is still plenty of equipment to go around and no one who wishes to play will be turned down. Everyone will be placed on a team and will be given an opportunity to play, even though they have never played the game before.

Heavy drills are scheduled to begin sometime during the coming week while the next practice is scheduled to take place at the Stadium this afternoon at 4:30.

that the reason given in previous years for not allowing women into the Faculty (i.e. that the proper accommodation was not available) had been removed as there were already girls in architecture, and that since Miss May Jackson, the person concerned, had an excellent academic record, she ought to be able to carry her course as well as any male student.

Professor Williams was enthusiastic. He thinks the new addition is a modern trend for the better. "If a girl wants to study Engineering," he said, "there is no reason why she shouldn't." When asked how he thought the boys would react he said that the few he spoke to were not in favour, but he added hopefully, "perhaps they were not typical." One of them thought the idea "stank." Professor Williams said he told the objectors that they were like the women before the French Revolution.

"We gave May Jackson a buzz. She was very happy that she had been allowed to enter. 'My father is an aeronautical engineer and I have wanted to be one, too, for a long time.' We asked her if she thought the boys would like having her."

"Well," she said, "as yet, the boys in my class have not paid any attention to me, for which I am grateful. The Upperclassmen object to me, I know, but I don't pay any attention to them."

We did interview four first year mechanical engineering students who will be in Miss Jackson's class and they thought the idea was wonderful. They had broad grins on their faces, and stated that with their entrance into Engineering along with that of Miss Jackson, the Engineering Faculty had gone up 100% in their esteem.

But there were still some other speculations and doubts expressed which were worthy of mention. One is as to how well Miss Jackson will be able to keep up with the EXTRA-curricular activities of the engineers. One said: "For the first time in its history, only 99.7% of the engineers will turn up at the Peel Street Tavern."

Another doubt expressed by one thoughtful individual concerned the effect this innovation would have on the Engineers. It was said that the Engineers would, probably all flunk since they couldn't possibly study with a woman sitting on their laps.
